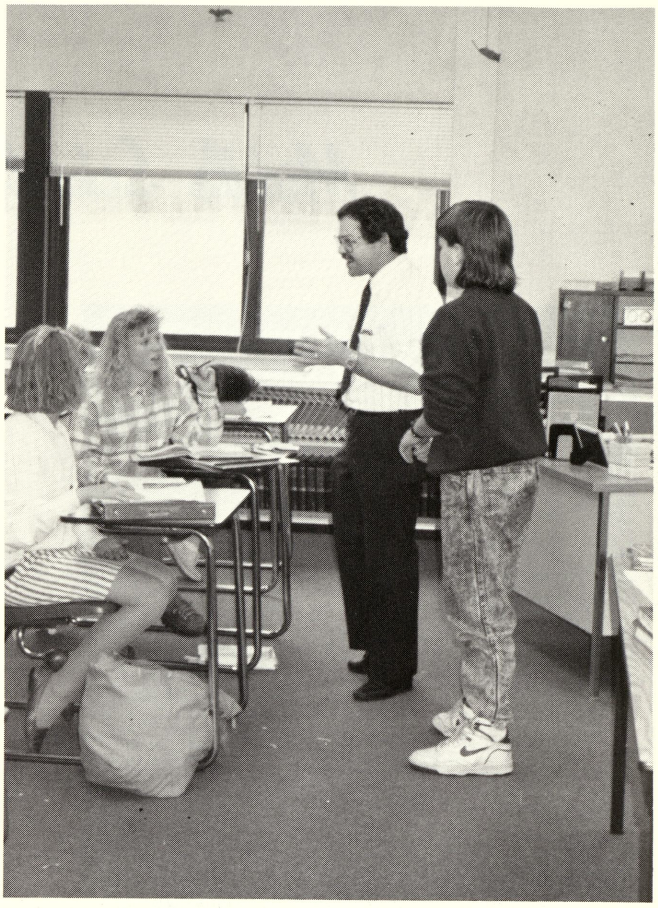
A Day In The Life . . .

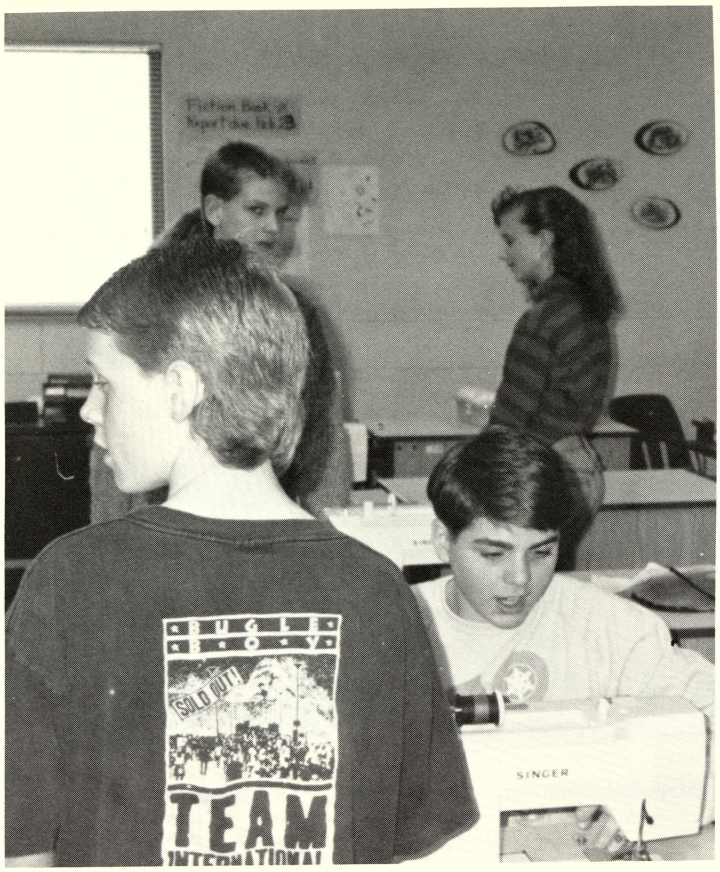
Azurely Hartzfeld, Cheri Hauk, Stephanie Jones and Stacy Judd get ready for first hour. Girls must look beautiful!



Mr. Fitzgerald gives a mini-lecture to three students. Talk about individual attention.

Hurry up and wait! Long lines sometimes greet hungry students at lunch time. At least it's time to eat.

Can we help you? Mrs. Kahl and Mr. Brosofski are always ready to help.



Pat Radewahn tries to sew up his home economics project. Real life requires so many skills, doesn't it.

Food at last! This looks like their favorite time of the day. Pizza and fries, please.

Looks like Mrs. Cleveland said something funny. Liz Wolinski, Jennifer Knight and Stacy Altman get close personal help.

Hurry to class! Kathy Schrems and Amy Oliver can't wait to get to their next one.

VFW Donates New Flag

The Veterans of Foreign Wars recently donated a new United States of America flag to the middle school. It will be used to fly over the school every day that weather permits. The VFW regularly does this as a service to the communities in the area. It is their way of encouraging the use of the flag of our country. The middle school staff and students would like to thank them for this gift to our school.

Accepting the new flag are Jason Rasmussen, Tracy Nelson, Holly Sumera and Joe O'Toole.

Seventh Grade

Seventh graders attend full year classes in mathematics, science, social studies, English and physical education. They also take one semester classes in Skills for Adolescence and developmental reading. Unified Arts consists of nine week sessions in home economics, art, music and industrial arts. Band is also available as an elective class.

Seventh graders work feverishly in Mr. Perry's math class.

Viking Spirit Promoted!

Last year Mr. Reeder's Skills for Adolescence class decided to do something to help increase school spirit. They conducted a fund raiser and earned enough money to have a special plaque built to display in the entrance of the school. The project was designed by a student and then built by Mr. Tyra. The staff and students wish to thank Mr. Reeder and his classes for their hard work.

Students see the plaque for the first time.
